PSP Alert

High levels of PSP (paralytic shellfish poison) have been detected in locally harvested shellfish throughout the region.

Recreationally harvested clams, mussels, oysters and cockles are NOT safe to eat.

Commercially sold shellfish is tested by DEC and is considered safe.

Symptoms of PSP include tingling of the lips or fingertips and numbness of the arms or legs. PSP can be fatal.

Anyone with these symptoms should seek immediate medical care or call 9-1-1.
